Allergen information will be presented to customers in the form of a table clearly stating which of the 14 major allergens are contained within a food or drink. Please note, as with every catering establishment, there is always a potential for cross contamination to occur. While we endeavour to prevent this as far as possible, the nature of an allergen means we cannot fully guarantee that cross contamination may not have occurred.

We encourage our customers with food allergies and intolerances to let our team know so we can better cater for them – which can be submitted in writing to the events team by emailing events@sufc-sales.co.uk along with your pre-orders.
