Delivering the office
Christmas party to your home

Delivering the excitement of the office Christmas party to you

It's been an incredibly tough year for everyone and whilst we all hope we'll be back to normal by Christmas, the reality is that many companies don't feel confident about booking a venue for their Christmas party.

But they'd still like to say thank you to all their staff.

And this year, that's needed more than ever.

So we've come up with a way to host a safe and super stylish office Christmas party, and give everyone a much needed morale boost.

How Does It Work?

Introducing the virtual office Christmas party, all ready to enjoy from the comfort of your home.

And before your heart sinks at the prospect of a Christmas zoom call you'll be pleased to know our parties are different.

Firstly not all the party is virtual. Every employee will receive a box at home, and let's face it we're all in a better mood when the postman delivers a surprise package.

Our Christmas elves will fill your party box with food, fun and festivity before wrapping it up and delivering it to you.

And they've enlisted more of Santa's helpers, leading caterers Caiger & Co. who have developed a range of innovative exquisite Christmas menus and drink packages.

After all, what's a party without delicious food and drink at the heart of it?

Each box will be customised with a choice of entertainment that's guaranteed to get everyone engaged, enabling you to create a party that's personal to your company.
